NYC's Animal Medical Center Expands Diagnostic Imaging Staff

Antonia DeJesus, DVM Joins as Staff Doctor

(New York, N.Y. – August 24, 2020) The Animal Medical Center (AMC), the largest non-profit animal hospital in the world, today announced the expansion of its Diagnostic Imaging Service with the appointment of Antonia DeJesus, DVM, as Staff Doctor.

“I’m so pleased to welcome Dr. DeJesus to the AMC family. She will join Dr. LeRoux and I in providing high quality radiological services to our patients, doctors, and clients,” said Anthony Fischetti, DVM, MS, DACVR, Head of Diagnostic Imaging at AMC. “The addition of Dr. DeJesus will allow us to shorten turnaround times for imaging reports and maintain the accuracy of diagnoses that our doctors have come to expect from the department.”

Dr. DeJesus completed a rotating internship at Blue Pearl Veterinary Partners in New York City, a diagnostic imaging internship at VCA Animal Specialty & Emergency Center in Los Angeles, and a diagnostic imaging residency at Tufts University Cummings School of Veterinary Medicine. Dr. DeJesus has authored several journal articles and is interested in all facets of diagnostic testing including ultrasound, Computed Tomography (CT), and Magnetic Resonance Imaging (MRI).

“As a native New Yorker, I’m excited to join the AMC team and work at the largest animal hospital in the world, with the highest volume and most diverse patient caseload,” said Dr. DeJesus.
